ATARI'S NEW COLOR QUADRASCAN (X-Y) MONITOR

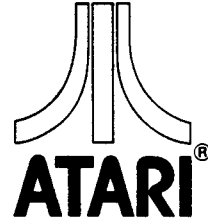

The introduction of TEMPEST marks another new generation in ATARI products. The black and white Quadrascan system used in past games has been redesigned to include an inline color picture tube. As a result, this new monitor displays dazzling color and unique visual effects in a spectacular three dimensional video display.

Both Quadrascan systems use the same technology except for the Z amplifier. Since the color picture tube contains three color beams (red, green, and blue), three Z amplifiers are used to control each beam individually. The Quadrascan color monitor system can produce a great number of colors in varying intensities.

A recommended list of spare parts for ATARI'S color Quadrascan monitor is attached.
